President’s Column

President Donna Slaton

Dear KSA,

Your KSA Board of Directors has had a busy summer and is working on plans to be even more active as fall rolls around.

Hope you will plan to attend the 2013 Fall Conference at Greenbo Lake State Resort Park Nov 1 & 2. There are still several easy and rewarding volunteer opportunities at the Conference so please contact Betsy Fleischer if you can give some of your time that weekend to helping with arrangements, room monitoring, registration etc. Please do not forget to reserve your room separately. This is a beautiful but remote location and early reservations are the wisest plan.

As the school year starts, please remind friends in your circle with children, grandchildren, or teachers in their families about the Kentucky Youth Storytelling opportunity. Share the possibility and encourage family and original tales as well as traditional folk tales. Send them to the website www.kystory.org or better yet print a page or two and keep it in your bag or car so you have something handy to show or share.

When you see an exciting storytelling event come in announcements please share with potential members on your email list…just a few you think they might be interested not the whole list kind of thing. New members mean new stories and that is fun for all of us.

Please check out the calendar in this issue and on the website and visit a storytelling near you. Share the joy.

Hope to see you at Greenbo.
Stories Connect Us All

Online Festival Uses Storytelling to Promote Cultural Understanding

Join Kentucky Storytelling Association as we partner with the Stories Connect Us All Online Storytelling Festival October 9, 10 and 11 – a free Facebook event. Every half hour from 8 am to 10 pm (CDT), 9 am to 11 pm (EDT) a new personal video story will post on the Stories Connect Us All Facebook Page (www.Facebook.com/StoriesConnectUsAll) – stories that can help heal our racial and ethnic divides.

KSA will be listed as a Peer Partner to this innovative event where you can watch over 70 humorous, heartwarming and thought provoking stories by 43 professional story artists! You can comment, ask questions and share your stories, too. Storytelling + Facebook = a worldwide FUN and RESPECTFUL conversation that celebrates our differences and all that connects us.

Please share this invitation with all your friends around the world so they, too, can have a front row seat to the Stories Connect Us All Online Festival right in the comfort of their homes (16 countries participated last year)! Online there are no geographic boundaries – anyone can view the Festival at any time at: www.Facebook.com/StoriesConnectUsAll, but with a Facebook account, you can comment, ask questions, and share your stories, too. You don’t have to fill out a full profile and you can cancel the account after the Festival. Go there now and receive behind-the-scene interviews and sample video stories.

For a full schedule of the three day event, select the “SCHEDULE” tab on the Stories Connect Us All Facebook Page.

Corn Island Storytelling Festival by Bob Thompson

The Corn Island Storytelling Festival, named after Louisville’s first settlement, was for 30 years a nationally known autumn fixture in Louisville. Founded by Lee & Joy Pennington in 1976, Corn Island was the 2nd oldest Festival of its kind in the US before ending its run in 2007. Starting out, with more tellers than audience, on the Jefferson Community College Campus in 1976, where both founders were professors, the Festival location moved many times over the years, reaching its zenith at a pioneer cemetery on Long Run road in Eastern Jefferson County. Later, to accommodate even larger crowds, and to avoid causing damage to the cemetery at its signature ghost story event, it was moved to Long Run Park, a Louisville Metro Park. After Lee & Joy retired from the Festival and the Louisville Metro Parks Department wanted to let native grasses return to sections of the park, the Festival moved to the Louisville Waterfront. The crowded Fall events schedule in Louisville and traffic noise from the nearby Interstate resulted in declining attendance. The organization, The International Order of E.A.R.S, decided to temporarily change its focus from a large public event to one keeping oral history & storytelling alive by writing grants to put storytellers in orphanages and other underserved facilities in the Louisville area, and by sponsoring storytellers on the Kentucky Homefront Radio Program. WFPK 91.9FM.

In 2011 the University of Louisville, through John Gage of Kentucky Homefront, approached EARS about permanently locating the festival on its campus and making it a free public event. As John Drees, Assoc. VP of Communications & Marketing at U of L, said, “Corn Island was such an important part of this community for decades. Storytelling and oral history are so important to our academic tradition that this seemed a perfect fit for the university. It also complements our Great Places to Work Initiative and our ongoing effort to attract more visitors to campus.” The EARS Board of Directors and Chairman Bob Thompson were ecstatic with the prospect of revitalizing the Festival on the University of Louisville campus.

In 2012 with funding from Louisville Metro Government and donations from several University departments including: the African American Theater Project, Security, Marketing, Facilities, Student Activities and the Library, the Festival had its revival on the U of L campus. Well over a thousand people attended the event and firmly re-established it as an annual occurrence.

This year’s Festival will be on the University of Louisville’s campus, in the lawn behind Ekstrom Library, on Oct. 11 at 7:00. Storytellers, Mary Hamilton, Octavia Sexton, Bob Thompson, & Bob Hill (of Courier-Journal fame) will appear along with Musician and raconteur John Gage. More information can be obtained at www.Cornislandstorytellingfestival.org
Wandering Storytellers by Charles Wright, Wandering Storytellers Chair

In July Wandering Storytellers held its second Story Slam of the year. Six tellers competed. Donna Gann won. Ed Bryson placed second, and Cynthia Brant placed third. The next Story Slam will be October 28th, so bring your five-minute tale if you’d like to compete. Listeners are always welcome, and you can also volunteer to judge.

In August Wandering Storytellers lived up to its name by having to wander to a conference room in the basement of the library due to the Farish Theater being given to a larger group. Billy Goldsmith was the featured teller, and again there was open mic telling afterwards. Ed Bryson was the featured teller in September, where he told the first part of Beowulf, along with more open mic telling (and we were back in the theater).

Wandering Storytellers takes place the last Monday of each month in the Farish Theater of the Main Branch of the Lexington Public Library, 140 Main Street, Lexington.

An exception to the usual last Monday scheduling will be the Monday, November 11th Veterans Day Storytelling – a special Wandering Storytellers Event. Jerry Young and Paschal Baute are coordinating this event. Contact Jerry at Quad4@kystory.org for details.

On Monday November 25th the featured teller will be Octavia Sexton. “Toil et Stories” will be told by Gwenda Johnson on Monday December 30th.

If you would like to set up a Wandering Storytellers event in your area please contact me at hiddenspring@earthlink.net.

Time to Pay KSA Dues by Mary Hamilton

October 31st is the deadline for renewing your KSA membership. The good news is that dues remain unchanged -- $15 student/elder 65 or older; $20 single; $40 family/organization. Dues may be paid online through PayPal at http://www.kystory.org/membership/membership-form.shtml or you may mail your check payable to KSA to: KSA, P O Box 4148, Frankfort, KY 40604-4148. Whether online or by mail, be sure to let KSA know if any of your contact information has changed in the last year. Some folks have already paid through 2014 and beyond. If you are not sure if you have already paid, contact Donna Slaton, KSA President, at 270-871-3719 or president@kystory.org. She can check the Member Roster for you.

Conference Deadlines Approaching by Mary Hamilton

Have you registered for the Kentucky Storytelling Conference?

No? The pre-registration rate of $30 individual/ $75 family ends on October 18th. After that, registration will cost $65 individual/ $110 family, so use your KSA membership benefit by registering now. You can register online at www.kystory.org or mail your payment to KSA, P O Box 4148, Frankfort, KY 40604-4148.

Yes? Fantastic! It will be great to see you there. If you are willing to help out during the conference, there are volunteer positions that still allow you to participate in every conference session, so don’t assume volunteering will mean you miss out on something. To volunteer, contact Conference Chair Betsy Fleischer, 859-612-8275, or conference@kystory.org.

Don’t forget to book your Greenbo Lake State Resort Park lodge room soon. Call 1-800-325-0085 by October 17th for park lodging at discount rates for single or double room at $59.95 plus tax and a $1.00 per night resort fee (additional adult in room $10 per guest). When you call be sure to say you are calling for rooms being held for the Kentucky Storytelling Conference. Additional lodging is available in nearby Grayson, Kentucky.

More Conference News by Mary Hamilton

In the July KSA Newsletter, you read about the wide variety of upcoming conference workshops on digital storytelling, Appalachian ghost stories, crafting personal stories and much, much more. To review all workshops and presenters, visit the KSA website www.kystory.org
As promised in July, here are additional details about the conference thread, “Native American Storytelling in Kentucky: Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow.” This thread, an addition to the Conference made possible through a $1000 Regional Spotlight Grant awarded to KSA from the National Storytelling Network, has been created in partnership with the Kentucky Native American Heritage Commission. The competitive Regional Spotlight Grant is awarded to only six events nationally, one in each NSN region. For an ongoing event like the Kentucky Storytelling Conference to qualify for NSN Spotlight funding, the grant application had to specify how funds would be spent to provide a new component to the ongoing event. Kentucky Storytelling Association’s goals include: helping people develop an appreciation and understanding of the oral cultural heritage of Kentucky, working with government agencies to bring storytelling to the public, and encouraging the ethical collection, preservation, and public disseminations of regional oral stories, including oral histories. Working with a state agency, the Kentucky Native American Heritage Commission to provide education on the storytelling traditions of Kentucky’s earliest and most long-term inhabitants seemed like both a wonderful way to enhance the Kentucky Storytelling Conference while helping KSA work toward several specific goals. The National Storytelling Network agreed. Here are the details on this part of the conference:

Kentucky Native American Heritage Commission has arranged for performances by featured storytellers, Lloyd Arneach and Sarah Elizabeth Burkey, on both Friday and Saturday evenings (in addition to the usual evening open mic times and Friday evening Story Slam) and has coordinated a workshop session and a panel discussion, both independent of one another and both offered twice to make it easy for conference participants to attend while also being able to attend a variety of sessions on other topics.

Native Stories in Context - Workshop
American Indian communities have been in Kentucky for more than 11,000 years. When settlers arrived here, Shawnee, Cherokee, and Chickasaw already lived here. Myths and misconceptions about American Indian people permeate many sources of information. This session will help you learn about the context of traditional stories, how to teach against stereotypes, and how to extend learning about Indian cultures today. Intended Audience: Teachers, all levels of storytellers, including youth tellers, others with interest in topic. Presenters: Dr. A. Gwynn Henderson and Tressa Brown.

Telling Native Stories – a Panel Discussion
What are your responsibilities when you tell stories that are not yours? Join a discussion with a panel of Native and non-Native professional storytellers in discussing points to consider when telling Native stories. We will discuss choosing the appropriate stories for your audience, learning to avoid stereotypes and misconceptions in your telling, and other topics related to Native storytelling traditions. Intended Audience: All levels of storytellers including youth tellers, others with interest in topic. Panel members: Sarah Elizabeth Burkey, Mary Hamilton, Chris Robinson.

About Lloyd Arneach: An enrolled member of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, Lloyd Arneach was born and reared on the Cherokee Reservation in Cherokee, North Carolina. He learned his first legends from two storytelling Uncles on the reservation. His father was Vice-Chief of the Eastern Band, his mother was the first woman ever elected to the Tribal Council and his Grandmother (Lula Owl Gloyne) was a Beloved Woman of the tribe. From 1970 to 1990, Lloyd traveled throughout the state of Georgia, lecturing on Cherokee history and culture, in his spare time while working for AT&T’s computer department in Atlanta. In 1990, he added storytelling to his presentations on culture and history and in 1993 began a full-time career as both storyteller and historian. He has told stories at the Kennedy Center, National Folklife Festival (Washington, D.C.), the opening of the National Museum of the American Indian (Washington, D.C.), the Winnipeg International Storytelling Festival (Canada), festivals, schools, universities, Pow-Wows, theaters, and other venues throughout the United States. Learn more at www.arneach.com

About Sarah Elizabeth Burkey: Recording Artist, songwriter, author, storyteller, and actress, Sarah Elizabeth Burkey has performed across the US and toured in 19 countries. Her writing has been published internationally and her work appears on 15 albums. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Music and Literature. Sarah has designed and presented arts and cultural education programs in conjunction with Smithsonian Exhibits and at countless Universities and Institutions of higher learning. Sarah was the keynote speaker and featured performer at the 8th Annual Women of Appalachia Conference. Her work places strong emphasis on cultural heritage and social and ecological justice. Sarah was appointed by the governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to serve on the Kentucky Native American Heritage Commission. Sarah also currently serves as Assistant Music Director for The Eastern
What’s on the KSA Website? (#3 in a series) by Mary Hamilton

Wouldn’t you think a website for a storytelling organization might have information somewhere describing excellent storytelling? We do! If you look at the judging guidelines for the Kentucky Youth Storytelling Program you will have a pretty clear idea of what’s involved in excellent storytelling. You’ll find those guidelines here: http://www.kystory.org/progs-and-activs/youth-judging-guidelines.shtml. These guidelines provide a fine description of most storytelling situations, with only a very few common sense adjustments needed.

What adjustments? On story selection, of course every story a teller tells does not need to be appropriate for a general audience, but in the Youth Storytelling Program the stories do need to be appropriate for a general audience. Instead of eye contact, for tellers who cannot see the audience, attention to the audience is the key – contact is still important, just not via the eyes. And in the case of tellers who communicate via a signed language instead of a spoken language, facial expressions, stance, and other physical communication take on a greater importance.

Youth Storytelling News by Mary Hamilton

On Saturday August 27th Kentucky Youth Storytelling Torchbearers wowed an ever-growing crowd of listeners at the Kentucky State Fair. Bravo to David Benning, Noah Hughes, and Carson Latham, who entertained the audience with delightful retellings of traditional folktales and literary tales. David told the Appalachian folktale “Old Dry Frye” and another tale of a fellow who struggled to order his food. Noah told the Andy Griffith versions of “Romeo and Juliet” and “What it was was Football.” Carson retold the literary tale “Wolf who Cried Boy” by Bob Hartman. All three successfully engaged their listeners, both people who filled the available seating at the start of the program and those who could not help but stop to listen when they happened to walk nearby. We can be proud of how well these young tellers represented KSA and grateful to their families who made it possible for them to participate.

All of the current Kentucky Youth Storytelling Torchbearers have been invited to tell at the Kentucky Storytelling Conference. At press time, we don’t know which ones are going to be able to be there, but we know Conference participants will enjoy the telling of any Torchbearer who can attend.

If you know any storytellers who will be ages 8 – 17 by June 1st, please encourage them to enter the Kentucky Youth Storytelling program. Entry deadline is June 1, every year. You’ll find all the details at http://www.kystory.org/progs-and-activs/youth-storytelling.shtml or you can contact Gwenda Johnson, KYS Chair, at 606-207-9769, or kys@kystory.org.

Cave Run & KSA -- Story Slam by Mary Hamilton

KSA partnered with the 15th Cave Run Storytelling Festival to create the first ever Cave Run Storytelling Festival Family-Friendly Story Slam sponsored by the Kentucky Storytelling Association on Saturday, September 28th. Ten people told their five-minute stories during the one hour slam, and we ran out of time for telling before we ran out of entries! Third place prize of $5 went to Elizabeth Mynhier of Jeffersontown, KY. Second place prize of $10 went to KSA Member Ed Bryson from Nicholasville, KY. The winner, recipient of $20 and a KSA membership, was Kristi Stuckel of Danville, KY. Many thanks to KSA members who made this event happen: Charles Wright donated the prizes and judged. Maryann Zoll and Cynthia Changaris also judged. Betsy Fleischer kept everyone on time. Mary Hamilton emceed. Carolyn Franzini, KSA member and coordinator of the Cave Run Festival, presented KSA’s Story Slam idea to the Cave Run Storytelling Festival Committee, secured approval for the event, provided space in the Festival Sales Tent for Slam sign-ups and other KSA information, and made sure the Story Slam was printed in the festival program along with a “sponsored by the Kentucky Storytelling Association” credit line. Yippee!! In addition, KSA has already been told we are welcome back next year!
Fringe Performance Opportunity

Phoenix, Arizona

The Fringe @ the NSN is back for its 8th Season!

Explore the limits of storytelling at the National Storytelling Conference.

Want to present 55 minutes of your most compelling, riskiest, experimental or work in progress storytelling? How about a mini-fringe event with you and a friend in a pair of shorter performances? Just think of the possibilities: 55 minutes of folktales, autobiography, performance art, stand-up, puppetry, dance or your favorite long form story!

What is the Fringe? The NSN Conference Fringe follows the Fringe Festival model giving artists freedom to create and audiences “the ability to decide for themselves the truly great productions from the good, the bad and the gloriously disastrous.” In keeping with the Fringe principle of an un-juried selection process, Fringe performers for the 2014 National Storytelling Network Conference will be selected by public lottery.

Growing networks of performance venues all over the world have adopted this model and many storytellers are taking advantage of these venues to reach new audiences. The Conference Fringe encourages more storytellers to participate in American and Canadian Fringe Festivals by providing the opportunity for you to experience many aspects of a typical Fringe Festival including the selection process and performance framework.

Entry Deadline: December 31, 2013

Cave Run Storytelling Festival (see related article)

If you’ve reached out on behalf of KSA, please let the newsletter editor know so your efforts can be acknowledged. Although you may not care if you receive a public thank you or not, sometimes seeing how others have promoted KSA serves to help your KSA colleagues develop ideas of how they can spread the word.

Everyone, KSA has brochures about the upcoming Kentucky Storytelling Conference and rack cards about KSA programs, services, and memberships to assist you in telling others about KSA. Request either for distribution from the KSA Communications Committee, Chair Charles Wright, 502-223-4523, or communications@kystory.org
Kentucky Reading Association Hosts Storytellers by Mary Hamilton

Storytellers will be among the featured presenters at “Literacy Without Borders” the 50th Kentucky Reading Association Annual Conference, October 17 – 19, Hyatt/Lexington Center, Lexington, KY. Conference organizer, Dr. Laurie A. Henry of University of Kentucky, has agreed to include KSA rack cards and conference brochures in all participant packets, and KSA members are welcome to participate in the conference. You can learn more about registration at www.kyreading.org.

Nelson Lauver and Michael Lockett are the two conference presenters with a storytelling focus. Mr. Lauver will lead a pre-conference institute on Thursday, October 17th. Dr. Lockett will present a workshop on Friday, October 18th and the closing general session on Saturday, October 19th.

About Nelson Lauver: At age 29, with the help of a very special educator, Nelson Lauver was diagnosed with dyslexia and made it his goal to finally learn to read and write. In the 18 months that followed, intense struggle, burning desire and a never-give-up attitude enabled him to achieve his goal, and change his life. Nelson learned to read and write, and that was just the start. With the gift of literacy, a new world suddenly opened up to him.

Today Nelson Lauver is an acclaimed broadcaster, speaker, humorist, award-winning narrator, author and advocate for literacy and disabilities awareness. Nelson has become a master communicator with a powerful message that he shared with radio and Internet listeners and live audiences around the world.

About Michael Lockett: Michael Lockett is a teller of traditional tales in a non-traditional manner. Mike is a lifelong storyteller and has added writing children’s books to his bio. Lockett has been telling stories for 40 years in his positions as a storyteller, teacher, principal, central office administrator and educational consultant. Because he lives in the small town of Normal, Illinois, he enjoys being called “The Normal Storyteller.” But, there is little that is NORMAL about Mike. He brings high energy and creative used of audio sound effects to his family friendly stories. Mike has given more than 3,000 presentations and workshops in 27 states across the United States and as far away as eastern Asia. He has performed in fourteen countries. Dr. Lockett had published eight children’s bilingual picture books (Chinese and English).

KSA appreciates the Kentucky Reading Association’s work of bringing the art of storytelling to its members. We hope providing information on the Kentucky Storytelling Association will inspire members of the Kentucky Reading Association to learn about storytellers and uses of storytelling close to their homes.
